

Mark is an experienced technologist, his early corporate successes led Mark to form his own enterprise software company, producing and selling to Universities and institutions. A hands-on role, Mark executed his idea from concept to maturity, while also leading the international sales for an advanced engineering company through to its M&A.

Mark is a former Senior Adviser at UK trade & investment, where he used his time to build contacts in technology, IoT and Smartcities sectors, as well as the investment and accelerator environment. Managing a team of seven, his role facilitated a good understanding of the London technology environment.

Mark continued his passion for supporting Start-up and Scale up organisations by joining London & Partners as the tech & urban specialist on the Mayor's international business programme. Helping London companies internationalise.

Most recently Mark has started several new projects, the first Element's is looking to bring technology, liquidity and transparency to the climate change investment sector. The second is an annual guide and accelerator programme to showcase the most influential, innovative companies, and visionary personalities shaping the Fintech industry.